Hiring Employees in Congregations

What steps must my congregation take before hiring a new employee?

Does your congregation have its ‘I-9’s in order?
Under federal law, all employers—including congregations, synods, and church organizations—must have a form on file that verifies the employment eligibility and identity of each employee.

The Immigration Reform and Control Act requires all U.S. employers to complete the Employment Eligibility Verification form (Form I-9) for all employees, including U.S. citizens. There are no exceptions! There are many documents that have been approved to establish employment eligibility. Be careful to note which documents are needed alone and which ones are needed in combination.

- U.S. passport
- Driver’s license
- Social security card
- Certified copy of birth certificate
- Permanent resident card

The Bureau of U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services has primary responsibility for enforcing these laws. You will find the I-9 forms, in English and Spanish, and other useful information on their Web site.

Employment Screening
- Have a job application completed
- Ask for references
- Ask for previous employment references
- Make sure you call the references and make written notes of the calls for your files.
- See ELCA job application sample

Background Checks
Are there some questions we should ask and issues we should address when doing background checks in the staff hiring process? Yes – please review the ELCA resource “Background Check Questions.”
You can do a background check yourself or hire a service to do it for you. Most of this information is public record and can be retrieved online.

Background Checks can be done to:
- verify name and address and previous addresses
- verify previous employers
- verify Social Security number
- verify educational history or professional license
- verify military service
- search criminal records
- search civil records
- search sexual offender / terrorist databases
- search driving violation records

Two background check companies, ChoicePoint, a LexisNexis company, through VolunteerSelect Plus and Oxford Document Management Company, are offering ELCA organizations and institutions at competitive fees for their services:

Called to be a Safe Place: Addressing Sexual Misconduct in Our Church - A Web site containing a variety of resources dealing with sexual misconduct issues offered by the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. Early in the life of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, this church expressed clearly its intention to take whatever measures it could to help prevent sexual abuse and misconduct within the ELCA. In other words, the church is “Called to be a Safe Place.”

Creating Safe Churches: Addressing Sexual Misconduct  A Web site containing a variety of resources dealing with sexual misconduct issues is offered by the Presbyterian Church. The theme of the site is “Safe Churches.” The Web site contains sexual misconduct-related definitions, awareness-raising resources, guidelines for creating sexual misconduct policies for congregations, protocols for reporting incidents of sexual misconduct, resources for rebuilding trust that has been shattered in a religious community by incidents of sexual misconduct.

Books and Pamphlets:
Safe Sanctuaries: Reducing the Risk of Child Abuse in Church by Joy Thomburg Melton

This 80-page book from Upper Room provides guidance to help develop policies and procedures for reducing the risk of child abuse in the church. The book defines the scope of child abuse, outlines the different types of abuse, notes the indicators of abuse, discusses the legal requirements for reporting abuse, and provides guidelines for screening and hiring workers and volunteers. The book also outlines basic procedures of safe ministry with children and youth and outlines a congregational plan for responding to allegations of abuse. Sample forms included for screening workers, requiring background checks, doing reference checks and reporting suspected abuse. A suggested training session plan for people who work with children and youth is outlined, and a bibliography of suggested resources is included.

Also included:
Safe Sanctuaries for Ministers
Safe Sanctuaries for Children and Youth DVD
